THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

25X1 Between 17 and 23 March 1954, drillings were to be made on 40 spots in a wooded area, 2.5 x 1 km, southwest of Wolfsbehringen, northeast of Eisenach, by order of a governmental agency which apparently had received orders from the Soviets. The wooded area had previously been used as a Soviet summer camp and, during the boring operations, was unoccupied. Some of the low wooden buildings still existed and were guarded by a Soviet sentry. Prior to the boring operations, surveying work had been conducted in the area. Some members of the Cottbus construction staff were expected to arrive at the site on 24 March. [redacted] a home field of the former German Air Force existed west of Wolfsbehringen. On 26 March, [redacted] an airfield, referred to as Project No 541, was to be constructed near Wolfsbehringen and that Lieutenant Roth (finu) was the officer in charge of this project at the Cottbus construction staff. Source made a location sketch of the construction site.

25X1 [redacted] Comment. This information on the intended construction of an airfield near Wolfsbehringen, 15 km west-northwest of Gotha, confirms a previous report. [redacted]

25X1 [redacted] It remains to be seen whether the airfield will be a VPL installation. For location sketch of construction site, see Annex.
